A Woman of Business.

Mrs. Lizzie Young, a colored woman of Jacksonville, Fla., has established quite a draying business in that city. She owns three drays and employs from twenty to thirty more when occasion requires. She pays each drayman $1.50 day, calling fourteen loads a day's work. At present she is employed in hauling away the sand from the excavation on the government lot, and so far has sold every particle of the sand dug out. Mrs. Young knows by face and name every drayman in her employ. But draying is not her only business. For six months every year this enterprising young woman runs an ex- cars, the robbers pulled the bell-cord, tensive wood yard at North Springfield, and four or five teams are kept busy delivering wood. She sells, besides, many hundreds of dollars' worth of pork every year, and does a good trade in poultry and eggs.

FROM JOY TO GRIEF.

The Sad Sequel to a Happy Thanksgiving Rennton at the Home of Prof. William Bennion at the Home of Prof. V liyer at Webster Groves, Mo .- Thos. Elliof Dyer, the Professor's Second Son! Accidently Shot and Instantly Killed

While Carclesely Handling a Shotgun-St. Lotis, Nov. 26.-Young Thomas Elliott Pyer, second son of William C. Dyer, principal of the Madison school, dead at the residence of his parents Webster Groves. Full of life and endowed with rare mental gifts and personal charms the lad was the idol of an unusually bright and happy family circle. At the close of a pleasantly spent Thanksgiving holiday he was called to his final accounting without a moment's warning. He was shot through the heart by the aecidental discharge of a gun and, falling into the arms of his elder brother, died without a groun. His mother was gione in the house to recrive the remains of her son. Thursday the Dyer family assembled to partake of a Thanksgiving dinner, which was not one alone in name, but in reality. William C. Dyer, his wife and three boys, were joined at the family board by Charles A. Dver. brother of the head of the family, and wife; the father of Mr. Dyer and other guests. In the afternoon, after the repast, William C. Dyer accompanied his aged father to his home at Glendale, Charles A. Dyer and wife returned to their home in the city, and John and Thomas Dyer took their shotgans and started off for an afternoon's hunt in the sucrounding country. The boys pursued their pas-time until nearly 5 o'clock, and then turned their steps homeward. Near Kirkwood they met three acquaintances who were riding in a wagon along the county road leading to Webster Groves. The young huntsmen jumped into the vehicle, placed their guns in the bot-tom of the wagon and jolted along merrily, chatting and laughing with their

When the party reached the crossreads a few hundred yards from the Dyer residence, the wagon stopped and John Dyer took up his gun and jumped out. Thomas Dyer followed him, and turning round, seized his gun by the muzzle and drew it quickly towards him. The hammer caught on the wagon bed, and one barrel was discharged, sending a heavy load of shot through his left breast. The shot passed through the heart and issued on the left side of the back. The young man whirled round once, and John Dyer, who had just turned round to thank his friends for the ride, caught him before he could fall. Death was

A number of persons who were at tracted to the scene of the awful accident by the report of the gun, followed the wagon to the house and assisted in removing the dead to one of the rooms, Messengers were sent in quest of the father, who reached home a few hours later to receive the stunning blow. Mr. Dyer was missed at the Madison school yesterday morning and the teachers were at a loss to account for his absence, until they saw a death notice in the morning papers announcing that Thomas E. Dver had met death suddenly. The dead boy was 17 years of ago and was receiving his education at the school of which his father is principal. He was well advanced in his studies, and in personal appearance was tall and strikingly handsome. Among his associates he was a general favorite.

A THANKSGIVING HOLD UP. The Pullman Car Passengers on a Northern Pacific Train Compeled to Dis

gorge by a Band of Bold Robbers. SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 26 -The overland west-bound train on the Northern Pacific was held up Thursday evening near Hot Springs by three masked men, who robbed all of the male passengers in the Pullman sleeper Wadena, six in all. Danforth's Sentence

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 .- A Washington pecial to the Herald says: In approving the sentence of one year's suspension from rank and duty on leave pay the case of Assistant Engineer G. W. Danforth, Secretary Tracy makes very clear his position in regard the subordination of engineer officers to the officers of the deck. He says that the offense was "clearly a violation of the express regulation requiring engineers on duty to conform to the orders of the office of the deck, who is the representative of the commanding officer of the vessel
